Tom Long.

In every city there are some men whose worth is appreciated by everybody and whose friends are found in every walk of life. Tom Long was one of these. His popularity was wide, his reputation was without a blemish and his character formed a just basis for his reputation and the opinion held of him by those among whom he was born, spent all his days and ended his career in the prime of a well-spent life. He possessed a keen intelligence, a high order of integrity and the ability to judge men. He was kind-hearted, generous and true and yet was seldom imposed upon. His knowledge of human nature enabled him to make few mistakes in granting favors. He was born a banker, in that he knew whom to trust. In his daily life he was always polite, and his courtesy was unfailing. His personal following was as large as any man ever had in the city and yet he never used his influence for his own benefit. He might have had offices for the asking and yet he never sought an office. He preferred to help his friends, and no man was truer or more devoted to his friends. As a citizen he was always progressive and far-seeing. In many ways he showed his love for his native city and much of his work in building up Hopkinsville was of a lasting character. The great institution of which he had been an officer from its organization, could always be relied upon to take the lead in every progressive movement. He was not only a good business man, but he was a devoted Christian who measured his daily deeds by the golden rule. He was a friend at all times to the poor and needy and while he made money for others he saved little for himself, because of the liberality of his heart and the unselfishness of his nature. He was never very strong physically, but his energy was without limit. He died in the midst of his usefulness and at a time when life seemed to be opening a new vista for him and to hold out the promise of a less strenuous life, and a gradual approach to the end of a well-spent career in the ease and comfort that an increased income would bring. Why such a man should have been taken all too soon is one of the things that we cannot understand. He has answered an untimely call, but he was ready to go. Let us keep his memory green.

IN 40 MILES
OF WARSAW

Germans Are Again Threatening The Capital of Poland.

IS QUIET ALONG THE YSER

Servia Is Being Hard Pressed And Is In Danger Of Defeat.

London, Nov. 23.—The veil of secrecy has been drawn over the battles between the Russians and the Austro-German forces. Headquarters of both armies confine themselves to briefest statements, saying merely that fighting continues.

News from unofficial sources, however, shows the German advance has penetrated farther into Poland than previously disclosed. Warsaw is threatened for a second time. Gen. von Hindenburg's army has advanced as far as the Lowicz-Skierniewice line, or two-thirds of the way to the Polish capital, from which they now are only forty miles distant. Farther south in Poland, however, the Teuton allies are said to have been repulsed between Radom and Kielce.

The battle in East Prussia seems to have died down, but the Russians continue to advance in Galicia and still are fighting on the Czenstochowa-Cracow front.

The battle in Poland, in the direction of Lowicz, is the most critical one and the Germans have the greatest confidence in the outcome, but Petrograd military observers declare Russia's overwhelming superiority in numbers again must tell, as when the Germans made their first attack on Warsaw.

In Flanders and in France the armies seem to be enjoying a long deserved rest. The only evidence that the belligerents are facing each other is an occasional bombardment with heavy guns.

An eyewitness with British headquarters, in a long statement made public today, gives official confirmation of heavy German losses at Ypres. He speaks of decimated battalions, of hundreds of dead left before the trenches and of batches of bodies found in farm houses. Casualty lists show that the British forces also have suffered severely.

The Servians are making a stand against the Austrians in well chosen fortified positions on the Kolubara river, but as the Austrians command superior forces, it seems apparent that unless other Balkan states come into the war Servia is facing defeat.

The recruiting campaign in the British Isles resulted today in bringing many men to the colors. Troops with banners flying and bands playing marched through the east end of London to Victoria park, where speakers addressed the crowds from early morning until late this evening.

EX-BANDIT
NEAR DEATH

Frank James, One of Once Notorious Band of Western Outlaws Stricken.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Nov. 23.—Frank James, one of the James brothers, notorious as highwayman shortly after the Civil War, was stricken with heart disease, and is reported as dying at the James home near here. He is seventy-three years old.

James is one of the last surviving members of the robber band made celebrated by an almost unparalleled career of crime during the unsettled period following the close of the Civil War.

Among the deeds committed in Kentucky by the James band were the looting of the Russellville bank in 1868 of $17,000 and the robbery of the Columbia bank in which R. A. C. Martin, cashier, was killed.

THE MELANCHOLY DAYS HAVE COME, SADDEST OF THE YEAR

Death's Icy Hand Is Laid With Chilling Blight Upon Many Homes In City And Christian County---Hopkinsville Loses One of Its Most Useful Citizens.

THE DEATH OF THOS. W. LONG, A PROMINENT BANKER.

With shocking suddenness the city of Hopkinsville was overwhelmed with sorrow Saturday morning to learn that Thomas W. Long, Cashier of the First National Bank, was dying. Mr. Long had been suffering with what was supposed to be a bad cold for a week, but the report from him Friday afternoon was that he was much better and in no danger. The startling news could scarcely be believed, but it was all too true and Mr. Long expired at 9:30 Saturday morning.

The change in his condition came late in the night when he was attacked with a rigor due to heart trouble. Early in the evening he had been told of the sudden death of his sister, Mrs. Kate Long Young. He expressed his deep sorrow but received the news calmly and there was no apparent change in his condition from the shocking news. It was several hours later that his fatal relapse came about two o'clock a. m., and medical aid proved to be of no avail. Mr. Long was the youngest of a family of fourteen children and was born in Hopkinsville Jan. 25, 1858. His father was Gabriel B. Long, a prominent citizen of half a century ago. Of the large family, four died in infancy. Three of the sons became bankers. Mr. Geo. C. Long President of the bank of which his brother was cashier, is now the only surviving member of the family.

When he grew to manhood Thos. W. Long learned the banking business in the Bank of Hopkinsville during the presidency of John C. Latham, Sr. In 1889 he became Cashier of the First National Bank and had held the position for 25 years. For many years he was also a partner in the Giant Insurance Company but had retired from the insurance business a few years ago. He was secretary of the Hopkinsville Building & Loan Association, a most prosperous concern, and at the time of his death was secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Hopkinsville Public Schools and of the Hopkinsville Realty Co. He was a most efficient business man, wonderfully apt and capable in clerical work. He was quick to perceive, prompt to decide and systematic in carrying out and his judgment of men was seldom at fault. In his banking business he was calm and untroubled and his unflinching courtesy was proverbial. He could be firm when necessary and decline a request so courteously and sympathetically that he escaped almost entirely the usual lot of occasionally making enemies through the necessary operations of a carefully conducted banking business. The confidence of the community in him as a man was implicit. No shadow was ever cast upon his integrity. He was honest to a cent in all his dealings and had no patience with any form of crookedness in others. This faith in him was attested in the bequest of the late W. A. Wilgus, who left his large estate to Mr. Long in trust, without bond, he to receive the income during his lifetime. This property estimated at $30,000 now descends to the city of Hopkinsville for the use and benefit of the white public schools to provide playgrounds for the children. Mr. Long lived only three weeks after becoming the beneficiary of his friend.

Mr. Long was married in 1883 to Miss Bessie Williams, a daughter of Prof. Aaron F. Williams, who lived only a short while. He was again married in 1886 to Mrs. Minnie Payne Trice, who survives him. Mr. Long lived in a beautiful new home in Hopper Court on Eighteenth street. He was a lifelong member of the Christian church and one of its most faithful officers. For many years he was superintendent of the Sunday school but gave up that work several years ago at a time when his health was somewhat impaired. He had been a deacon of the church a long time. The funeral service was held at the church yesterday afternoon at two o'clock in connection with that of his sister, Mrs. Young. Rev. J. T. Hawkins, of Elkton, preached a most appropriate sermon and the music was led by Mrs. L. E. Foster. The interment followed in Riverside cemetery. Brother and sister were laid to rest in their respective family lots not far apart.

The pall-bearers selected from Mr. Long's close friends were Thos. L. Metcalfe, Bailey Russell, A. H. Eckles, Sam Frankel, Guy Starling, B. B. Rice, G. H. Stowe and Jeff J. Garrett.

As a special and unusual honor to the deceased banker, all of the banks in the city closed at one o'clock yesterday. The First National Bank closed Saturday at noon and did not reopen yesterday.

MRS. KATE LONG YOUNG
Died With Shocking Suddenness Late Friday Afternoon.

The circumstances of the death of Mrs. Kate Young, Friday evening, just fifteen hours before her brother, Thomas W. Long passed away were shocking in suddenness. Mrs. Young was in her usual good health to all appearances and had spent the afternoon with her brother who was ill and who was seemingly in no danger. She had been on the streets in the forenoon and after luncheon made some calls before going to Mr. Long's. She returned to her home at Mr. H. H. Abernathy's just before night and talked for a while with Mrs. Abernathy and then went to her own room. A few minutes later Mrs. Abernathy heard her fall and rushing to the room found her lying unconscious on the floor, near a chair in which she had been sitting. She died in a few minutes without regaining consciousness. Her death was due to a sudden attack of heart failure.

Mrs. Young was a daughter of the late Gabriel B. and Martha Long and was born in Hopkinsville. In 1870 she was married to Dr. Jas. A. Young who became one of the leading physicians and most prominent citizens of the city. He died a few years ago. Their family consisted of four children. Miss Mattie Young died several years ago and not long afterwards the oldest son, a fine young business man, Jas. A. Young, Jr., was killed by accident. She is survived by one son and one daughter, Daniel Young, of San Diego, Cal., and Miss Ellen Young, of Boston. Her daughter arrived Sunday night from the East.

Mrs. Young was a lifelong and devoted member of the Christian church. In all works of charity and helpfulness to others she found a congenial occupation and her death leaves a void in the church and the community that will never be filled. Her funeral was held with that of her brother, Thos. W. Long, at the Christian church at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. T. Hawkins, of Elkton, and she was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery.

The pall bearers were H. H. Abernathy, Dr. Manning Brown, Dr. C. H. Tandy, Joe McCarroll, Jas. O. Cook, J. A. Browning, Jr., R. E. Coates and H. H. Perkins.

VERA CRUZ
EVACUATED

American Soldiers Withdrawn From Mexican Soil After Seven Months.

PRES.'S POLICY EXPLAINED.

Five Battleships Will Remain as Lookers-on In Mexican Waters.

Washington, Nov. 23.—General Funston's infantry and marines numbering about 6,000 men today hauled down the stars and stripes, which had been flying over Vera Cruz since last April, and evacuated the Mexican port, in accordance with instructions from President Wilson.

The five battleships at Vera Cruz and Tampico and the string of vessels on the west coast will remain in Mexican waters to afford protection to Americans and be in readiness to meet emergencies.

President Wilson is hopeful that evacuation of Vera Cruz will be an enduring demonstration of the policy of the United States enunciated in his Mobile speech a year ago to seek no territorial aggrandizement south of the Rio Grande. He believes continued presence of American troops on Mexican soil would be misinterpreted throughout Latin-America.

Advices from Mexico today were confusing, but the American government's determination to withdraw its troops from Mexico and remove from Mexican territory a possible cause of international friction as well as a potential factor that might become a domestic issue between factions in Mexico.

ASSOCIATION'S NEW MOVE

Loose Floor Warehouse to be Run By Hugh West.

The Planters Protective Association at their last meeting adopted the plan of operating a loose floor in connection with their storage houses throughout the district, wherever there is enough demand for loose tobacco to justify same, thereby giving all an equal opportunity to sell either loose or through the pricing system. Their business will not be confined to members of the association, as they have released all pledges and keep open house at all times for any one desiring to sell through the association. Hugh West has announced that he will operate his warehouse at 12th St. and L. & N. R. R. under this plan, with charges just the same as the other loose floors and daily sales in regular rotation with the other floors. The season will open next week.

Joker Signing Himself As 'Possum Hunter' Makes Laundry Prices.

Rockport, Ky., Nov. 20.—"Look out; washerwomen will hang to a line if they don't charge the following price for washing. This is a 'possum' hunting him a place to stay all winter."

The above notice was posted in several places in Rockport and has caused a reign of terror among the negro women who wash for a living. The notice continues to give the price to be charged for each garment washed.

A significant fact is that the warnings are being obeyed. The losses by the sinking of the Good Hope, off the coast of Chile, Nov. 1st, were 887 men, besides the 52 officers previously reported.

AVIATORS'
BOLD DASH

One Is Brought Down and Two Are Put To Flight By Cannon and Guns.

SIX BOMBS DROPPED CLOSE

One Killed a Man and Another Wounded A Woman.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Nov. 23.—Elaborate German precautions for an emergency were responsible for failure of a raid of three English aviators who yesterday swooped down upon this city with the object of destroying the Zeppelin balloon works. Anti-aeroplane cannon and machine guns brought down one of the machines and put the others to flight.

The British airmen first were seen above Constance at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and their presence immediately was announced to authorities at Friedrichshafen by telephone. When they appeared at Friedrichshafen the anti-balloon cannon and machine guns immediately opened fire. The Englishmen circled above the balloon hall for some time and dropped six bombs, two of which came so near the building as to cause a tremor of apprehension. Two others struck houses in the city, damaging them severely and killing a man and wounding a woman.

One of the flyers attempted to cross the hall at a height of only a quarter of a mile. Bullets from guns on the tops of buildings, however, pierced the aeroplane's gasoline tank and the pilot was forced to glide to earth. On reaching the ground he tried to defend himself with a revolver but was captured after receiving a slight wound in the head. The point where the aeroplane landed was only 300 feet from the Zeppelin plant.

The wounded man is being treated at a local hospital.

OUTLOOK
FOR TOBACCO

Weather Unfavorable So Far For Handling New Crop.

While no actual sales of tobacco were reported on this market last week, conditions generally were altogether satisfactory, and such developments as came to light further strengthened the indications of an active season when new tobacco begins to move, and the probable sale at an early date of the old stocks amounting to possibly 1,100 hogsheds, which still remains unsold here.

Unless the weather conditions change, there will be very little new tobacco ready to be offered on December 1, the date on which the loose floors are scheduled to hold their first sales. The weather has ruled so uniformly dry or cold since the tobacco was cured up that none of it has been stripped out as yet, and until it is stripped it cannot be offered to advantage on the loose floors.

The situation is much more encouraging since it has become known that there will be a foreign market for the black tobacco. Much interest is felt in what the prices will be for the new crop. They are expected to rule somewhat lower than heretofore, though the crop is conceded to be a short one.

Gone After Game.

John Franklin Bible left Saturday for Lake George, Miss., to visit friends for three weeks and join hunting party a part of the time. Mr. Bible owns the largest Bull Moose head in Kentucky, a trophy of one of his hunting trips, but this animal is now so scarce that it is protected by the strictest game laws.

ROAD BUILDING

GRADING OF COUNTRY ROADS

Great Care Should Be Exercised in Selection of Material for Bridges and Culverts.

One of the most serious wastes in connection with our highway building is the necessity which is often met with of destroying miles of gravel or stone road-bed, hardened and cemented by years of travel, but which is found to be out of line or out of level with the requirements of the highway as determined by the best engineering practice.

When such a road is too high it must be excavated, at a cost considerably in excess of that of ordinary soil or gravel; and when too low, it is covered by the new material, with a total loss of the original investment, writes
B. G. Marshall in Progressive Farmer.

The labor expended upon roads that have followed the lines of least resistance, after the manner of "The Path the Calf Made," may be found, when these are relocated according to modern methods, to offer but slight assistance in the establishment of the permanent highway; but where they are the ordinary dirt or clay trails of many districts we may console ourselves with the fact that they never represented any very heavy investment. The lamentable thing is the laying of what should be permanent construction under strictly temporary conditions—the building of the house upon the sand.

Even in the counties where the population and the amount of taxable property are very small in proportion to the road mileage, it should be the practice to make any extensive improvements or alterations only after securing the advice of a competent highway engineer. The temporary employment of such an official is quite practicable; and the returns will be many hundred per cent on the outlay.

The loss on bridges and culverts in a relocated and graded road is generally heavy. Most constructions, even if found in fairly good condition, are totally destroyed by removal. An exception is the corrugated iron pipe.
When made from high purity iron, these culverts are but slightly affected by rust, and can thus be rightfully classed as permanent improvements, but they are also ideal for a temporary location, as they suffer no damage in being dug out and relaid.
Brick, stone or concrete should only be employed where the location is fixed for all time, and where also an absolutely rigid foundation can be assured.

In America, we do a vast deal of work which has to be undone a few years later. We want results, and want them quick; as a nation we have the energy and folly of youth.
It is highly interesting to note the vast amount of labor on the farm, the highway and in the stores and factories which has to be performed as a result of earlier errors and miscalculations. We build barns and silos and establish a milk route; and two years later decide that our circumstances or our inclinations are better adapted to fruit raising; and an expensive dairy plant becomes idle and useless. The storekeeper stocks up on a line that his customers don't want and can't use and the goods encumber the shelves until they are sold at a sacrifice. The manufacturer buys machinery and employs experts to effect a minor improvement in his product, and the next year finds the article displaced in the market by a totally different and superior device. In several directions, however, indications may be observed of the rule of a maturer judgment.
We are learning to conserve still more valuable things than lumber and water power. The waste of time and of labor is beginning to be understood as sacrifice of human life.

Transporting Farm Products.

If the roads from the farm to the place of marketing were good it would mean better prices for the farmer and cheaper food for the city consumer.
If the farmer has a solid road with a reasonable grade he greatly prefers to draw his products to the city personally and sell them from his wagon.

Register Tractive Force.

A dynamometer mounted on an ordinary dray is used by the United States department of agriculture to register the tractive force required to draw various weights over different kinds of roadways.

Betterment of Children.

Let us have better roads and schools
and better neighborhood co-operation, in order that our children, in their day, may fare better than we have done.

Why Not More of Them?

Good roads lessen the distance to town and cheapen the cost of marketing. Why not more of them?

Should Think Again.

The man who thinks bad roads are a necessity should think again.

The Julian Calendar.

The great Julius Caesar, B. C. 46, was the first to reform the calendar by ordering that every year whose date number was exactly divisible by four should contain 366 days, and all other years 365 days. It was Caesar who changed the beginning of the year from the first of March to the first of January. The Julian calendar continued in use until A. D. 1582.

Contentment and Health.

After all, the question of liveab-leness in any environment is, as a rule, one of the temperament and adaptability of the individual. This is the opinion of the Journal of the American Medical association. Americans have braved the dreaded tropics with comparative comfort and remained in perfect health. Manila and Panama have lost the terrors of climate, while the far North has become the field of pleasure seekers. The healthfulness of an environment, urban or suburban, inland or coastwise, has become almost entirely a question of personal hygiene and mental satisfaction coupled with the indispensable accompaniments of public sanitation.

FAVORED MUSIC IN WARFARE

Great Soldiers of the Past Maintained Absolute Need of the Martial Strains.

The war between Russia and Japan was regarded by many experts in things military as having sealed the fate of the martial drum. The Japanese armies moved from first to last silently, save for the occasional blast of a bugle. The drum was conspicuously absent. Before that war it had been abolished in some European armies, but no great war had been fought without it.

Napoleon was an ardent defender of the drum, and he believed, with Marshal de Saxe, that great general of the eighteenth century, that the measured sound made by the drum and the fire was indispensable to make men march well. "The drum," the Corsican is reported to have said, "initiates the cannon. It is the best musical instrument in the world, for it never gets out of tune." And the little corporal was fond of pointing out the passages in "Othello" wherein the poet makes the Moor pay a glowing tribute to the "spirit-moving drum."

Napoleon's opponent, Wellington, contended that without the strains of music it was quite impossible for troops to make successful charges. Wanting music, he said, men would come up ragged and open against the enemy.

Musical authorities seem agreed that, when used in a proper way, the drum is thoroughly musical. The common snare or side drum is freely used in musical compositions. A large number of drummers performing simultaneously out of doors produce good music. In this connection Berlioz, the composer, pointed out that a sound that was insignificant when heard singly, such as the clink of one or two muskets at shoulder arms, or the clank as the butt comes to the ground at ground arms, becomes brilliant and attractive if performed by a thousand men together.

The gaekwar of Baroda is far wealthier than the king-emperor, to whom he has proffered all his troops and resources. The annual income of his highness Sayaji Rao III amounts to over £1,000,000, and his collection of gems is said to be worth at least £2,000,000. When holding durbars his highness wears a necklace containing a diamond for which he gave £80,000. This is a Brazilian stone of the first water, known as the Star of the South, and formerly belonged to Napoleon. The gaekwar, however, spends money on more useful objects than gems. Baroda is famous for the wisdom with which it is governed and for its splendidly equipped schools, built and endowed out of the gaekwar's private purse.

Screams of a huge gray eagle captured by A. V. McCoy, of Mott, on the Southern railroad seventeen miles west of New Albany, can be heard for a mile. FAVORED THE CONCISE FORM

Neat Rebuke Administered by Emperor Francis Joseph to Devotee of "Red Tape."

The emperor of Austria-Hungary is no slavish admirer of red-tape methods. He loves the fluent, direct manner of the military man, and is on the best of terms with the bluff, honest generals of his army. The following is an instance of how he upheld one of them in his controversy with the bureaucracy.

The officer was Galtotzy, a taciturn old soldier, whom the whole Austrian army knew and admired. After the occupation of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Galtotzy was sent to build a military road. Funds were short and the sum available for the purpose seemed hopelessly insufficient.

In spite of hard work and frugality, Galtotzy succeeded, nevertheless, in performing his task, and thereupon reported: "Road built; 25,000 florins received; 25,000 florins spent; remains nothing. Whoever doubts it is an ass."

Disappointed with so summary an account, the audit officials applied for a detailed statement of expenditure. Galtotzy ignored the application, which was presently renewed in peremptory form. Impatient of red tape, he replied: "Road built; 25,000 florins received; 25,000 florins spent; remains nothing. Whoever doubts it is an ass."

Shocked by such impropriety, a red-tapeist-in-chief submitted the general's "account" to Francis Joseph, who blandly inquired: "Do you then doubt it?"

FATE OF THE FOURFLUSHER

Young Man Was Mistaken in Thinking Girl Had "Fallen for" the Automobile.

She sat on a bench under one of the elder trees, with closed lips, drinking in the glories of the setting sun. "Excuse me," he said, lifting his hat with his right hand while he addressed her with the left, "but do you happen to have such a thing on you as a match? That is my automobile standing there and I find myself without a match to light the lamp."

It was obviously but a ruse to engage her in conversation, but he was rather a nice-looking young man, with a three-dollar knitted necktie and all, and she smiled as she told him how sorry she was about having no match.

"They all fall for the automobile," he muttered to himself.

One thing led to another, and soon he was sitting beside her chatting gaily about the Latin Quarter, Shakespeare's latest play, the prevalence of divorce and other absorbing topics. But soon it really did begin to darken up.

"I must go," she said, and, giving him a final smile, she strode daintily to the automobile to which he had pointed as his, hopped in and was lost in a cloud of dust, leaving him to reflect on the just deserts which sooner or later must envelop all fourflushers.

Limitations of Private Philanthropy.

In a certain city an energetic association secretary was just completing his fund for a fine new building. One night his wife was called out to a case of distress, through which he got an insight into the bad conditions surrounding working young women in his city. After carefully getting up his facts, he formed a committee, secured speakers and announced that on Friday there would be a public meeting to consider the problem of the working young women in local industries. Promptly he was summoned by telephone to meet the directors of his association, and when he entered the room, one of his Christian backers burst out upon him with: "What in h—l do you mean by getting up this public meeting? Don't you know I've got 80 girls working in the basement of my department store?" His other directors were equally stern, and he was ordered to call off his meeting or lose all the important contributions to his building fund. He held his meeting and immediately thereafter resigned.—Edward A. Ross, in Atlantic.

Buchanan's Public Life.

One hundred years ago James Buchanan, who in later life became President of the United States, was elected a member of the house of representatives in the Pennsylvania legislature. This marked the beginning of Mr. Buchanan's public career. At the time he was affiliated with the Federalist party. He disapproved of the war with England, but did not shrink the duties of an American citizen when the war became a fact and was himself one of the first volunteers to march to the defense of Baltimore. Mr. Buchanan retired from the legislature at the end of his second term with a determination to abandon political life, and devote himself exclusively to the practice of law. A few years later, however, he was induced to accept election to congress and soon became a figure of national prominence.

Non-Retroactive.

A New York salesman tells of a stay made by him at a western hotel where he observed an old-fashioned roller towel.

"Say," asked the Gothamite of a man in the washroom, "don't the owners of this hotel know that it's against the law of the state of Illinois to use roller towels?"

"He knows it right enough," said the man addressed, "but that law wasn't passed when this towel was

FORESAW WARFARE IN AIR

Horace Walpole Recognized the Value of the Balloon, While It Was in Its Infancy.

A remarkable prediction of the part that aerial machines would one day play in warfare was made by Horace Walpole—described by Lord Macaulay as the best letter writer in the English language—in a letter written from his famous Gothic "castle," Strawberry Hill, to the countess of Upper Ossory on October 23, 1784.

Not only did Walpole forecast the use of airships in war, but he also suggested the century in which such warfare would be waged. He wrote: "Balloons is a subject I did not intend to tap. If they can be improved into anything more than Brodwing-kites, it must be in a century or two after I shall be laid low. A century in my acceptance, means a hundred years hence. . . . After one ceases to be, all duration is of the same length; and everything that one guesses will happen after oneself is no more is equally a vision."

Walpole goes on to speak of the "airy vehicles" with which the atmosphere may be peopled hereafter, and says he does not care to discuss the question.

"How much more expeditiously the East, West or South will be ravaged and butchered than they have been by the old-fashioned clumsy method of navigation."

"I smile," says Walpole, "at the adoration paid to these aerial Quixotes. . . . I observe that no improvements of science or knowledge makes the world a jot wiser."

The first successful ascent in a balloon had been made by Montgolfier in 1783.

GREAT LIBRARY OF LEMBERG

The Latest Statistics of the University Collections in the European War Zone.

The last report of the Lemberg University library was printed in No. 3 of the Polish Monthly Ksiązka. It records an increase of 5,505 titles in the library in 7,950 volumes, making a total of 240,000 volumes. Of these, 1,644 volumes came as gifts from the Galician publishers, 1,983 volumes from institutions and government publications and 1,278 from individuals or private institutions. In 1913 67,935 readers used 220,317 volumes in the reading rooms and 8,917 readers called for 17,710 volumes for outside reading, making a total of 76,852 readers and 237,183 volumes. The increase in circulation was 1,455, thanks to easier access to the improved card catalogue and handy catalogue of periodicals and publications in the library.

The University library of Lemberg was founded in 1774 by Joseph II from the books of the confiscated cloisters of Galicia. In 1848 it was almost completely destroyed by fire. Its collection was restored from contributions of duplicates from the Biblioteka Ossolinskich and the collection of S. Borkowski, so that in 1898 it once more contained 100,000 volumes.

Why He Didn't Contribute.

"About the very poorest excuse I have ever heard for a rich man not to make a contribution to charity, a specific case where a lot of us were trying to do something for an excellent local cause," said a Bronxite, the New York Sun remarks, "was handed out to me by a wealthy friend on whom I had been sent to call by the committee because he was my friend. I stated the case to him and asked him for $100—little enough considering what he had—but did I get it? Not any. Neither did I get anything, and his excuse was that his income tax was so heavy he really couldn't afford to spend any money except for personal necessities. He was dead serious about it, too, and didn't see anything incongruous in it even when I gave him the laugh. He isn't an altogether stingy man, either, but that income tax somehow had got on his nerves."

Tea and The.

At a tea given at the Ruhl in Nice to the officers of the Mediterranean fleet, E. Royal Tyler, the well-known author, said, nodding toward a sign, "The Damsel," which might be translated "Tango Tea."

"A French maid, when I refused tea the other afternoon, exclaimed:

"But monsieur is not like his fellow-countrymen, then!"

"Not like them? How so?" I said.

"Why, said the maid, 'I picked up one of your American novels the other day—a Howells novel—and, though I can't read English, I saw there was nothing but 'tea,' 'tea,' 'tea,' on every page. Now people who talk so much about tea must be extraordinarily fond of it. C'est-ce pas, monsieur?"

"She thought, you see, that our article 'tea' had the same meaning as 'the' in French."

Draft Oxen in England.

Owing to the demands of the war office there is such a dearth of horses for harvest purposes in the north of England that farmers are training oxen for the reapers and the plows, and it is not an unusual sight to see an old horse, long past the stage when he would attract the eye of a remount officer, yoked with a steer. There are many who would be glad to see a revival of the use of oxen for certain draft purposes, since it would probably lead to an increased raising of

JUDGE W. P. WINFREE'S

Tribute To Rev. Harry D. Smith At Farewell Banquet.

It is expected that upon this occasion, we should be as cheerful as possible. We want Bro. Smith to go away, with as pleasant a farewell as we can give him, under the circumstances.

I thank you for assigning me a subject that deals in the retrospect, rather than for forecast. As we approach the end of this earthly pilgrimage, we naturally look backward rather than forward, though a great poet has said: "The sunset of life gives us mystical lore, and coming events cast their shadows before."

Through more than 60 years I have been connected with this dear and well beloved old Church. As a barefoot boy, in this room, I sat and listened to the words of wisdom which fell from the lips of that wise man, Bro. Enos Campbell, the well loved pastor in that time, long ago.

I have shared the joys and sorrows of the good people who have made this their Church home, through all its changes and vicissitudes from buoyant boyhood and youth, with the rainbow of hope bright and beautiful, to this hour when the shadows are lengthening, and I am sometimes referred to as an old man, by the unthinking young who have never realized with the great poet Tennyson: "That the deep heart of existence beats forever like a boy's."

For nearly one-third of the time that I have been connected with this church, as boy, youth and man, Bro. Harry Smith has been our pastor and minister and I have been a member of his official family and intimately associated with him, and I feel that that I know him, both as a preacher and a man, and can say truthfully to know is to love him.

When I was a boy I learned to declaim a study of the great Napoleon by an eminent English orator, from which I recall, though not having seen them in print for more than half a century, these words: "Whether in the field or the drawing room, with the mob or the levee, banishing a Braganza or espousing a Hapsburg, dictating peace on a raft to the Czar of Russia or charging the enemy at the bridge of Lodi," he was great.

So in his sphere Bro. Smith has appeared to me, to have Napoleonic qualities.

Through all these 18 years of his wise leadership, I have never known of any jar or discord, either in the official board or in the congregation; of course there have been differences of opinions about minor details, but of larger and vital matters, there has been remarkable unanimity. Bro. Smith with characteristic modesty undertakes to give the official board and the Church too large shares of credit for this, but if you will ask any of the more than two dozen who constitute the official board you will find that it is to his skill and wisdom, and the spirit of the Master in his heart, that the larger part of it is due.

So much confidence has the congregation had in Bro. Smith's wisdom, goodness and devotion to its interests and those of God's Kingdom, which should be identical, that it has followed him almost without a word of dissent. Hence the Church life of the congregation has been unmarred and serene; unclouded, bright and for the most part joyous has been our sky as a church, through the 18 years of association with our dear brother, friend and pastor.

As I look back over the 18 years of our Brother's ministry with us, I can think of only one matter of regret, and this feeling, I doubt not, is shared by many of you men. On account of our complete confidence and trust in Bro. Smith's willingness and ability, we have let too heavy a share of the burden and responsibility of the work of the Church fall on his shoulders. To minister to 1000 people is no light task, with all the help that a preacher can command, but if any word of complaint has ever fallen from his lips, about the weight of the burden, I have never heard of it. Bravely and with rare ability and devotion to the Cause of the Master and love of humanity as well as of the brethren, he has done his full duty in all departments of his work. In the pulpit, in my humble judgment, none of the strong, able men who have preceded him here, since I have known the Church, have excelled him in eloquence and power.

In organization he has been a great leader, and as a pastor, he has been unflinching, and endeared himself to all classes and conditions of his people.

Nor has he failed in his relations to the community in which he has lived. Keenly alive to all that helps to good citizenship he has been in the forefront of every battle that has been fought for education, morality and temperance.

With rare courage and fidelity in its heroic fight for life, he stood by McLean College, giving ungrudgingly of his time and money, to avert what now seems the inevitable fate, which threatens all small unendowed institutions of learning. With large endowments enabling them to offer almost free tuition and other facilities, the large universities and colleges and well managed high schools with absolutely free tuition, have for years so handicapped the small colleges without endowments, as to make it only a question of time to quit; more's the pity, for the small college through the years of our history has been a great factor in our development.

Judged by the standard which the world accepts as a rule, we can congratulate Bro. Smith on his ministry of 18 years. Results: He found a congregation of 300 people, men, women and children. There has been an increase of 1,340 members, losses by death and otherwise in 18 years 635, leaving a membership Oct. 1, 1914, of 1,066. There has been expended during that time:

For current expenses.	$51,755.68
For improvements of the church house.	27,276.21
For Parsonage.	3,360.18
For mission, education and charity.	42,709.85

Total $125,101.95 Or nearly an average of $7,000 per annum. It goes without saying that the skillful and devoted pilot at the helm, should have the share of credit for this showing, that we all know belongs to him.

I would be derelict in my duty if I did not say something in recognition and appreciation of the work that Sister Smith has wrought as the helpmate of Bro. Smith in his ministry here. She has with conspicuous fidelity and ability, seconded all his efforts to advance the cause of Christ through all these years. Modest, discreet and cultured, she has set a fine example to our women of what a minister's wife should be, in the moral, social and religious life of the church and community. Her tact and good sense, and fine womanly qualities of mind and heart, have commended her to the highest respect and affection of all who know her in the church and community. I do not hesitate to say, that no inconsiderable part of the success which Bro. Smith has achieved, is due to her help in all those ways that a good woman knows how to make her work effective. In parting with the Smith family we could not, nor would not, forget dear Christy, who has grown from babyhood to promising young manhood, in our midst. Respectful to his elders, clever and obliging, we all love him, and expect and pray for a bright future of usefulness for him. We wish for him a career that will add lustre to the Smith escutcheon and will follow with pride that career if he carries a standard with "Excelsior" emblazoned on it's folds.

Though with heavy, sad hearts we say good-bye to the dear family we have loved and cherished, through so many years, yet with pride as well as affection, we send them to their new home, without a doubt but that the same high ideals, the same qualities, the same world embracing love that have knit them to us with "hooks of steel," will at once give them entrance to the big, warm hospitable, Southern heart, of the people of the Empire State of the South, for their fame will reach beyond Dallas as it has gone beyond Kansas, Missouri and Kentucky.

God bless and keep them is the prayer of all of us.

THANKSGIVING

THOUSAND things to be thankful for this year. It's true that we have experienced a touch of hard times, yet we have all had bountiful crops, lots of vegetables have been raised and stored for winter use. Tobacco is going to move and bring a very good price, European Countries are going to have to buy our food stuffs, mules, horses, harness and clothing.

Our young manhood is preserved to us. Father, Brother, Lover, Old Bachelor, are still on deck with a smile and joyous heart, that they are not called on to preserve the Peace and Dignity of the Greatest Government on Earth.

Internal dissensions are not alarming, labor conditions are not so good, but are going to be better in a short time.

Every good woman in this land will look up to our Creator with heart of joy and bless Him, because their loved ones are spared to them.

Clouds appear sometimes and the way seems dark and dreary, yet so certain will the sun shine and dispel them all.

Our Big Store has weathered the storm, it's been a hard pull and mostly up hill, yet we have had the assistance and co-operation of our salesforce, the confidence of the great buying public and look confidently for the biggest and best THANKSGIVING AND XMAS BUSINESS we have ever had.

CLARKSVILLE DEFEATED

High School Works Another Football Triumph Saturday.

Hopkinsville High School added another game to a long string of victories Saturday by defeating the Clarksville eleven in a rather loosely played game by the score of 12 to 0. As a whole the local team was not up to its usual standard. Fumbles and loose interference were the chief troubles, and penalties also aided Clarksville to a considerable extent. Be it said to the credit of the Orange and Black, that they were not wholly responsible for the ground lost in this way, as the head-linesman was misinformed on rulings, trying to enforce an 18-inch neutral zone between the two lines of scrimmage. It was not until the second half that he was set straight, and after this there was less trouble.

High School kicked off, and Clarksville, aided by penalties, and good end running, carried the ball to the center of the field. A long forward pass was intercepted by Breathitt, who carried it 40 yards to the 10-yard line. Brown made three yards, through tackle. Roberts gave three more. Brown carried the ball to the chalk line, but it was not counted over. Higgins was then called on, and plunged for six yards to the goal posts. Breathitt failed the goal, score H. H. S. 6; C. H. S. 0.

The other touch down came a moment later. High school received and bucked the ball to the center of the field, Higgins and Brown figuring largely in the gains. Roberts got loose on an end run for 35 yards. Plunges through tackle made ten more. On the 8 yard line Clarksville held. Two downs were lost with no gain. Roberts tried a fake place kick, but with no advance. A fake forward pass was called, and Weeks went over for the final score. Breathitt failed the goal. Score—

H. H. S. 12, C. H. S. 0.

The second half was uneventful, Clarksville called for time frequently, but by substitutions escaped the penalty. Lander was hurt in the shoulder, and was replaced by Torian. Clarksville showed more aggressiveness in the last period, but only one threatened the High School goal. Roberts was thrown for a loss of 10 yards. The pass to Weeks for a point was imperfect, and he was thrown on the 20 yard line. A penalty for holding placed it on the 10 yard line, but Clarksville was unable to gain. The game ended with the ball in Hopkinsville's possession on the 30 yard line.

Weeks, Higgins, Breathitt, and Brown deserve commendation for the game they played.

Clarksville's captain played a steady game, but the lack of condition of his team mates made it impossible for his work to turn the day. Their left end Cooper, also made good on the offense, several times coming around for tackles behind the line. Clarksville also deserves credit for the manner in which they broke up interference, it being the equal of any scholastic team interested this year.

Mr. Leach of S. P. U. refereed the game in faultless style. A large crowd of local rooters witnessed the victory.

Score—H. H. S. 12, C. H. S. 0.
Touchdowns—Higgins and Weeks.
Referee—Leach of S. P. U., Unipire Soyars of Swarthmore, Time of periods, 12 to 10.

The next and last game of the season will be with Paducah High School here on Thanksgiving day. The sporting "dope" is largely in favor of the Orange and Black, but since this is a championship game, Paducah will put up a fight for laurels. She demonstrated her strength Saturday by defeating Madisonville 31 to 0.

Should Hopkinsville win, and Henderson defeat Owensboro the three mentioned teams will be tied for the championship. Owensboro, to date is undefeated, Hopkinsville having lost to her alone, and Henderson to Hopkinsville.

Look at Me I am Well.

"I cannot say too much for Peruna. It has entirely cured me of my trouble. My eye lids were thick and red nearly all the time. My eyes were especially sensitive to light. Catarrh was my trouble. I had had my eyes treated and took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to help me until I tried Peruna. I always use Peruna when my family need it. Always find it very good. It helps wonderfully. You can use my testimonial anywhere you wish to." So says Mrs. C. Skehan, No. 614 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ills.

COLDEST DAY IN NOVEMBER

Was November 12, 1872, When Barnum's Show Was Here First Time.

The coldest weather in November ever remembered here was Nov. 12, 1872, when B. T. Barnum's Great Show visited Hop insville. This was the first show ever brought here on the railroad, finished a year or two before. It was a record-breaker showing "three rings" at once. The show drew a great crowd and a sudden drop in the temperature during the day brought on zero weather. Many people died from colds caught in going home.

The show brought the horse disease known as "epizootic" to the city and it spread all over the country and raged all winter.

OFFERS UP A PRAYER THEN LEAPS FROM BURNING HOME

Edward Finn Trapped In a Blazing Structure Jumps 35 Feet.

Trapped in his home with fire blazing all about him, Edward Finn, a young man, resided on one window ledge, long enough to offer up a prayer for safety, in response to his mother's admonition, he leaped to the ground below a distance of 35 feet a moment before the entire building collapsed. He escaped unhurt.—Frankfort Journal.

She Misunderstood.
"There is one thing I wish to say to you. The last girl had a habit of coming into the parlor and playing the piano occasionally. You never play the piano, do you?" New Domestic—"Yes, mum, I play; but I'll have to charge you half a dollar a week extra if I am to furnish music for the family."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

"I stepped into the conservatory and caught young Mr. Pimlico trying to hug Miss Peacher."

"Did they see you?"

"No."

"Did he hug her?"

"I suspect so. Of course I didn't tarry, but as I turned to go I heard her cough and she didn't seem to have much breath to do it with."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one remedy for the most distressing and dangerous disease, Catarrh, which has been discovered. It is a constitutional treatment, and is known to the medical world as "Dr. J. C. Kelley's Catarrh Cure." It is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have no much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Victim of Tuberculosis In Princeton, Friday.

Robert Lee Castleberry, formerly secretary of the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association, died Friday at his home in Princeton. The great white plague, consumption, laid its hand upon Mr. Castleberry while he was here a little more than a year ago and his health failed so rapidly that he gave up his position and vainly tried a change of climate to arrest the disease, without success. Some months ago he returned to his home at Princeton and had steadily grown worse. Mr. Castleberry was 28 years of age and was a very energetic and enthusiastic young man in whatever he undertook and made a most efficient secretary. He did a great work in starting the H. B. M. A. off as a working body of earnest men intent on accomplishing big things for Hopkinsville. He was unmarried.

DIED OF BURNS

Clothes Supposed to Have Caught From Grate.

The child's mother, Rose Wallace, had gone from home for a short while, leaving the child in the house. On her return she found the boy lying on the floor writhing in agony from burns, his whole right side being burned almost to a crisp. The child's clothing caught from fire in an open grate.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armour clashing just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother—Serbia?

See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions may be sacrificed. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give you

Duruy's History of the World

Four splendid cloth volumes, full of portraits, sketches, maps, diagrams

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—just what has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a fair-round open port, with its economic freedom. Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pitted all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

This master of the pen shows you the power that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's! He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporary history, which itself, Grosvenor explains in brilliant manner. In the story of the past lie the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

Steals Ring From Baby.

The meanest man in the world broke into Herman J. Bocklins' house, in Kent, Westchester, county, N. Y. He stole two watches, a diamond ring, silverware, bric-a-brac, and $18 which he found under a mattress. He also took the family revolver. But to show what he was capable of he proceeded as follows: He took a piece of soap and greased fourteen-month-old Helen Bocklins' finger, slipping off her little gold ring. He cut a gold chain and locket from her neck. He smashed her toy bank and took $4.63. Last Helen should cry, he took her out of her crib while he stole her jewelry. Then he went away, leaving her on the floor. Her cries brought neighbors, who discovered the burglary.

Grief-Stricken Horse.

An extraordinary story of a horse's sorrow for the death of his master comes from a village in the north of County Antrim, Ireland. When the man died the animal was out at grass. One evening a few days ago it broke out of the field and went to the graveyard, a mile and a half away. The animal endeavored to get in, but was unsuccessful. It then broke into a field adjoining the sides of the cemetery, and made desperate efforts to climb the wall separating it from its master's grave. It was taken away, and locked in the stable, where it was found dead the following morning.

GREAT FISHING AND HUNTING

Doctor Ellis Brings Home Stories of Wonderful Sport in Interior of Alaska.

Dr. C. J. Ellis, who has just returned to Buffalo from a four-month trip to Alaska, brings back stories of that territory which will make the mouths of western New York sportsmen water. The usual tourist route is to Skagway or one of the south-eastern coast towns and thence back to Seattle. Doctor Ellis went over the long interior route from Skagway over the White Pass railroad to the headwaters of the Yukon and the whole length of the river, some 2,500 miles, thence out by way of Nome and back to Seattle by the ocean route, some 3,000 miles more—making a trip from Buffalo and back of some 11,000 miles. During his journey through Alaska he took side trips into the interior to several mining sections and into the big game and fish country.

"Before I went to Alaska," said Doctor Ellis recently, to a representative of the Buffalo Express, "I thought I knew what fishing was; but I did not learn until I reached that country. Now I know what fishing in a perfectly virgin stream is like. In the Nulato, with a friend, we caught brook trout of from one to three pounds until we tired of it. We could have caught four times as many as we did, but what was the use of killing when we had enough? I never knew anything like the way the trout rose to the cast."

"For a time we stayed in a miner's cabin 50 miles back from the Yukon with Jim Muir, a nephew of John Muir. On the way in, a moose was killed from the wagon in which we were riding. We just missed a herd of 10,000 caribou. There were bears all around."

Doctor Ellis brought home a large number of specimens, including two perfect mastodon teeth, one of which he has promised to William T. Hornaday of New York. He also brought home many photographs of the scenes along his journey.

MASONIC SIGN SAVED HIM

Potent Signal Used by English Engineer on Blockade Runner During the Civil War.

A story published recently describing how a Belgian saved himself and a number of his countrymen from execution, by showing a Masonic sign to the officer in charge of the German firing party, recalls an incident in the American Civil war which was related to our parliamentary correspondent by the late Sir William Allen, the giant engineer who sat for some years in parliament for Gateshead.

Allen as a young man was adventurous, and early in the Civil war he engaged in the hazardous business of a blockade runner. His steamer was in due time captured by a Federal gunboat off Charleston, and boarded. As the boarding officer came up the side, Allen went below to reduce the steam, which had been forced up beyond safety point during the pursuit. He was immediately followed by the officer, who put a pistol to Allen's head, and said: "You're going to blow up the ship!" "Oh, no, I'm not," replied Allen; "I am going to prevent her blowing up." "You're a liar," snarled the Federal, and he raised his pistol arm again.

At the same moment, Allen, by a sudden inspiration, made a Masonic sign. The officer's arm dropped at once, and he said, taking Allen's hand: "That's all right. Now you take the ship into port."

And there was no more trouble—except that Allen was sent a prisoner to Washington and had some thrilling adventures before he regained his freedom through the instrumentality of Lord Lyons.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Woman's Gift to Baseball.

Charles Bennett, famous as a catcher, for the noted Detroit team of 1886-1887, delights in telling the story of how his wife made the first catcher's breast protector. It was a constant source of worry to Mrs. Bennett to watch her husband acting as a target for the speedy twirlers of 30 years ago, and she determined to invent some sort of armor to prevent the hot shots from the pitchers playing a tattoo on the ribs of her better half. After much planning, assisted by practical suggestions from her husband she shaped a pad which bore some resemblance to the "protector" of the present day. In a private tryout it worked well and Charles, after permitting the ball to strike him repeatedly without feeling a jar, decided to use it in public. The innovation created almost as great a sensation as Brennan's shin guards, but it made a hit with the catchers and they were quite ready to follow Bennett's lead.—Leslie's.

Persistence of Early Habits. Prof. Ernest Haeckel, whose life has been an almost continuous series of great achievements, attributes his activity to his early training. "My mother," he says, "would never permit me to be idle for a moment. If I stood at the window day-dreaming, she would always urge me to be up and doing. 'Work or play,' she would urge, 'but do not stand idle.' Through this reiterated admonition, physical activity became a lifelong habit with me, and work almost a necessity of my being. If I have been able to accomplish my full share of labors, this is the reason. I am never idle, and I scarcely know the meaning of 'stand idle.'"

She Was Smothering.

Rockford, Ala.—Mrs. M. C. Paschal, of this place, says: "I was taken with nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells. I called in physicians to treat my case, but without relief. Finally, I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman." Are you weak, tired, worn out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up, out of bed, feeling happy. Try Cardui.

GERMAN MOTTO "ICH DIEN"

Urged That Language of Teuton Be Removed From the Prince of Wales' Badge.

The school readers of a past generation told the brave story of the battle of Cressy, fought on the 23d of August, 1346, in which the English defeated the French with great slaughter, an exchange remarks. Among the dead was the old blind king of Bohemia, who was led into the battle by guides. His standard was taken and carried to the black prince. On it was his crest, three ostrich feathers, with the motto in German, "Ich Dien" ("I serve"). This the prince adopted; and it has been borne ever since by the successive princes of Wales in memory of this victory.

Today it is being urged by British newspapers that the language of the Teuton be removed from the badge and the plain English, "I serve," be used in its stead. To the feathers taken from John of Luxembourg, king of Bohemia, with the motto, the coronet was added. It is said, by Edward VI and "the prince of Wales' feathers" are vested in the heir apparent, whether he is created prince of Wales or not. But worse is yet to come if the suggestion of a Welsh paper prevails. The paper suggests that to be a correct and proper motto for the prince of Wales neither "Ich Dien" nor "I serve" should be used, but the simple Welsh translation, "Gwasanae thaf."

Approximately one hundred students escaped by climbing through a skylight to the roof and then making their way down the sides of the three-story building on fire escapes. The dead include two officers of the institution and eight students. All of the latter were under 17 years of age.

MEN IN MIND IN HOPKINSVILLE

People of Prominence In The Pearl City of The Penny-royal.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 64.

One Of Clarksville's Contributions to Hopkinsville's Business Circles.

During the rapid development of Hopkinsville in recent years many sister cities have been called upon to supply men in the constantly widening business circles. Clarksville has contributed quite a number of our most enterprising and useful business men, who have quickly made themselves at home in the city's busy life.

Among these are Messrs W. B. Anderson, president, and J. M. Neblett, secretary and treasurer, of the Acme Mills. They came to Hopkinsville nearly two years ago to resume the operation of that big mill, which had changed hands following a period of inactivity.

J. M. Neblett was born in Montgomery county, Tenn., near Clarksville, Nov. 15, 1869. When a boy of 20, he went to Clarksville and became a salesman in a big grocery store, where he became well grounded in business dealing with the retail trade. In 1900 he became a traveling salesman and was on the road for two years. In 1902 he entered the milling business with the Dunlop Milling Co., of Clarksville, and remained in the same position until the mill here was purchased by the Dunlop company and Mr. Neblett was sent here as an experienced and capable man to put the property on its feet. The confidence in him was not misplaced. Coming here on January 1, 1913, the new management quickly and intelligently took hold of the work in hand with a success that surpassed their own expectations. The Acme Mill has once more become one of the business enterprises in which Hopkinsville feels a just pride and the wide awake secretary of the company has made a place for himself among the prominent business men of the city.

J. M. NEBLETT.

As evidence of this he was last summer elected vice president of the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association and is one of the association's most active and influential members.

Mr. Neblett is a member of the Methodist church and also belongs to two lodges, the Knights of Pythias and Woodmen of the World.

He lives with his family on Alumni avenue.

THE DECEMBER WIDE WORLD MAGAZINE.

Among the many interesting articles which appear in the December Wide World Magazine is one by Joseph Highton entitled "Among Head-Hunters and Cannibals." It relates the manifold experiences of Captain W. Sinker who has for many years been cruising among the South Sea Islands, lately in command of the Malasian Mission steamer "Southern Cross." Captain Sinker has seen many strange sights among the islands, where cannibalism, head-hunting, and fierce intertribal feuds still continue, despite the efforts of the Government and the missionaries. Her Highness the Rani of Sarawak continues her "Adventures in Sarawak" and Mrs. Fred Maturin continues a series of well illustrated articles entitled "Our Travels in Safari-Land." Among the purely adventurous experiences may be mentioned "The Mutiny of 'Zha'," "The Bluffing of Din Mahomed," "The Runaway Train" and "The Night-Watchman's Story." The magazine is profusely illustrated with seemingly hundreds of photographs.

"ANNE OF THE MINES"

To satisfy his revenge because of his exposure and his rejection by Anne, Arizona kid, the desperado plans to kill her intended husband. He arranges a cave-in, and premature explosion of dynamite, that his intended victim when caught in the mine will be instantly killed. She learns of his villainy and descends into the mine in face of the impending explosion, rescues her lover from his perilous position and escapes herself, just as the explosion takes place. The man who had designed the dastardly plot loses his life by the instrument he had intended to slay his rival with. In this picture, which is to be shown to-day at the PRINCESS Theatre, as this brief description indicates, there is an unceasing suspense and a succession of thrills that stimulate and delight all men and women of normal constitution.

Shower for Miss Adams.

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the winter was the Miscellaneous Shower, given for Miss Bau'ah Adams at the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Boyd, on last Thursday. The members of the Church Hill Book Club, and many invited guests being present. Though the first storm of the winter raged without, within was a bower of plants and blossoms, while bright and charming hospitality of our hostess gave cheer and happiness to all. Progressive Rook was played, after which a delicious salad course was served.

At four o'clock the guests were invited into the reception hall where a huge decorated chair had been placed for the honor guest. Then slowly from above a large basket covered in roses and hearts was lowered, bringing to the bride-to-be many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mrs. Boyd was assisted in receiving by Misses Annie Clardy, Gertrude and Elizabeth Gary and Mrs. W. F. Boyd.
